Four Candidates In Last Minute Council Filing

Four candidates filed this morning for city council before the noon deadline, bringing the total to six running for two council vacancies in the April 8 city election.

Gunnar Norberg, Mrs. Walter Nielsen, James Campbell, and Jack Benson filed this morning. Last week Mayor John Chitwood, incumbent, and Paul Hazdovac became candidates, (see Feb. 6 Pine Cone.)

Mr. Benson has lived in Carmel for three years. He has been music critic for the Monterey Herald for this length of time and a year ago joined the paper's display advertising staff.

"I have been here three years," Mr. Benson told the Pine Cone immediately after he filed, "and have been getting established and watching the management of the city. I see some places where I might be able to contribute, such as annexation, and I am interested in the community culturally and naturalistically."

Mr. Benson moved West from New York City where he was a writer. On the way he spent a year teaching English and music at the Cranbrook School in Bloomfield Hills, Michigan, and a summer teaching swimming and riding in a Montana boys' camp. Arrived on the coast, Jack Benson spent almost a year in Berkeley doing radio and record production and sales work, then moved to Carmel where, for a year, taught music and English at Robert Louis Stevenson School. He and his wife, Kaye, have three pre-school age children, two girls and a boy.

Signers of his papers were George R. Walker, Phyllis S. Johnson, George Bestor, Gus Arriola, Dudley Nix, Kaye Benson, Loli Willox and Gilbert Boyer.

James Campbell announced his candidacy for councilman yesterday morning. His papers were circulated and filed this morning by Michael Franke. Signers were Senator Fred Farr, Barnet Segal, Hazel McLellan, Mary N. Sweeney, (Continued on Page Twelve)

School Board To Ask 50 Cent Over-Ride, $800,000 Bond Issue

After a joint meeting with the citizens' committee, the Carmel Unified School District Board decided to ask for a 50 cent over-ride tax in the school district election to be held April 22. Registration closes February 26.

Also in the same election, they will ask the voters to approve an $800,000 bond issue for new construction. The committee had recommended $799,959.60 bond issue until they discovered you can't sell bonds in odd-number lots.

The over-ride tax will provide for increased operation expenses, including hiring 14 new teachers and granting pay raises for both teachers and non-certificated workers. A new salary schedule, presented by the teachers Monday, provides for minimum starting wage of $4500, maximum $7950. The board did not commit itself, but the over-ride tax will cover it; also lease purchase of 41 acres of land at $14,000 a year for ten years, and installment purchase of a school bus.

Gateway Committee Seeks Appointment Of Rural Planner

The Valley Gateway Property Owners Committee are making an appeal for support to get representation for property owners in unincorporated areas on the county planning commission.

Keith Evans' and J. P. Thorn's term expired on the commission recently. Mr. Evans has been re-appointed. The supervisors have not yet made the second appointment. The Gateway Committee point out that though the county planning commission's business is almost exclusively concerned with property in the unincorporated areas, the commission is made up of members who live in cities. They are asking that the new appointee be someone whose residence and interests are rural.

On page 12 of this issue of the Pine Cone there is an advertisement which the committee asks you to read, and if you think their stand is reasonable, to clip, sign and mail to Supervisor Hudson.

Protective Association To Ask New Zoning

The Carmel Protective Association has withdrawn its opposition to the Surf N' Sand off sale liquor license. Instead, the group announced this week that it would concentrate its efforts to work out with the city attorney a new zoning ordinance to give more effective protection to the residential area adjoining the business district.

The following is the Association's formal statement:

"The Carmel Protective Association, in conjunction with the City of Carmel has established the principle of control of liquor sales adjacent to the residential area of the city. The city ordinance prohibiting the establishment of liquor (Continued on Page Twelve)

Ethel Kurland Impressed By Integrity Of Spanish, Deplores Plight Of Youth

BY ROSALIND SHARPE

Back from Spain and the continent, Carmel photographer Ethel Kurland is still a bit overwhelmed by the integrity of the Spanish spirit, a thing which she says she has never encountered in any other people anywhere, but she is deeply concerned about the plight of the Spanish young people. The products of the Civil War of the '30s, they are, she reports, in a tragic and hopeless situation. Few of them have a chance to get an education or to get ahead in life. Many of them want to come to America as they have heard that education is free here, but due to quota regulations they are not permitted to come.

There are many cases, she says, in which Americans living in Spain are willing to adopt Spanish young people and bring them to America, but this also is contrary to regulations. In practice, a great number of these Spanish young people who were orphaned or left destitute by the Civil War have been adopted by Americans in Spain in the sense that they live with them and have been brought up by them; but when these Americans return to the United States they must leave their Spanish foster children behind them.

She says that the young people whose parents fought "on the other side" during the war are much discriminated against when it comes to jobs, but that the children of both sides suffer, for there are few jobs, and no opportunities. "A young man must hold two or three jobs even to survive," she says.

Ethel Kurland, who is a Quaker, visited all the Quaker centers in Europe and familiarized herself with their work in education, medical aid, construction projects, and other activities which aid impoverished and illiterate peoples. Unfortunately, the Quakers are not allowed in Spain and so there, (Continued on Page Three)

Mrs. Walter Nielsen, announcing to the Pine Cone her decision to be a council candidate, said she is running "because people I admire persuaded me to." She wants to keep Carmel residential and "sincerely believes we should have a Master Plan" although she does not think "it is necessary to accept the Livingston Plan as a whole" and wishes to study this plan further before making definite statements about it.

Mrs. Nielsen has lived in Carmel since 1935. In the spring of that year, with her mother Mrs.

M. K. Hall, she came to Carmel on a visit, after graduating from (Continued on Page Twelve)

Gunnar Norberg, who filed nomination papers today for city council, was born in Kenora, Ontario, Canada, "on the wrong side of Lake of the Woods," he says. Sixteen months later his parents moved to Little Falls, Minnesota, the right side of the lake but it was too late. "I can never be President of the United States. Our teacher used to tell us, 'any of you can grow up to be President of the United States' except Gunnar. A naturalized citizen can't become President and Gunnar was born on the wrong side of Lake of the Woods."

Gunnar spent three years with his parents' relatives in Sweden, finished high school in Minnesota, and would have finished Stanford but for a "misunderstanding" in his senior year between administrators and himself about a college discussion magazine he founded, edited and published. During his years at Stanford he worked as clerical assistant for a Southern Pacific train dispatcher in San Francisco, from 4:00 to midnight. One summer he was cub reporter on the Burlingame Advance; he also did features and news for the San Francisco Examiner on space rates and in 1931 had a syndicated column in the San Francisco and Los Angeles Examiner and the Seattle Post Intelligencer.

Following not graduating from Stanford, Gunnar went to New York and held editorial jobs with various publications. He was assistant managing editor for the four movie magazines of the Fawcett publications; managing editor for the Annenberg Company's Radio Guide, and editor of the picture magazine that later became Click. He sold stories to True, Good Housekeeping and other magazines. While in the east he met Barbara, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. C. D. Collins of Fresno and Carmel. LEAGUE BASKETBALL GAMES AT CARMEL GYM FRIDAY AND SATURDAY NIGHTS

Carmel High's surging hoop squads, fresh from a clean sweep over the Gonzales cagers, return to the Carmel pavilion this weekend for a pair of league engagements. Friday night, the Padres host the San Lorenzo Cougars and come right back on Saturday night to greet the Live Oak Acorns. Both nights of basketball action will be "get-even" affairs for the Carmel lads as they were rudely jolted by both the Cougars and Acorns in first-half play. Top lightweight scorer in the CCAL will show for the San Lorenzo Babes in Friday night's preliminary when Gary Chandler takes the floor in the 7:00 o'clock opener. This little hoop star dropped through 31 points to scuttle the Padre Babes in the first round game and has been peppering the hoop for over a 20-point average in all league games. The San Lorenzo varsity also boasts one of the league's best shots in the person of Bill Vessey who is near the top of the shooting averages. The Cougar varsity has won 5 and lost 5 in league play this season and is deadlocked with Live Oak for fourth place in the B-division standings. The Cougar lights also have a 5-5 record for the season and are currently tied with Carmel for the number four spot.

Saturday night's twin bill with Live Oak gets underway at 7:00 o'clock when the two lightweight clubs take the floor. The Acorn lights have been the scourge of the CCAL for the last three seasons and are currently far enough in front to have already cinched the league crown. Pacific Grove is the only team to defeat the Acorn Babes this season, upsetting the over-confident league leaders last Friday night. In the first round the Live Oak lights whipped the Little Padres rather soundly and figure to do the job again unless the Carmel lads have grown a lot since the first meeting.

Carmel's varsity had an unusually cold shooting night when losing to Live Oak in the first round but Coach Yurkovich's hustlers have been improving with each game and are rated better than even to turn the tables on the Acorns. Improved shooting at the center spot to go with the steady scoring jobs turned in by Dale Dawson and Bill Hicks make the Carmel heavies one of the best scoring clubs in the league. The Carmel varsity will open both Friday and Saturday night's action with a starting unit of Dennis Peavey and Dale Dawson, guards, Art Wilkerson at the pivot spot, and Phil Durbrow and Bill Hicks, forwards. The Carmel lights will shoot with their number one platoon of David Farr and Russ Wise, forwards, John Doud, center, with Pete Willcox and Pete Osborne at the guards.

CARMEL HOOP SQUADS WIN THREE AT GONZALES

Finding the new Gonzales High gym strictly to their liking, Carmel High's basketball squads swept a triple-header from the Spartans last Friday night. The Carmel junior-varsity topped the host jayvees, 32 to 26, the Padre Babes got the job done, 29 to 26, while the Carmel varsity put together the best team effort of the season to triumph, 52 to 49. In winning the varsity tilt, the Padre heavies move into fifth place in the B-division and can move into the first division if they can get over San Lorenzo and Live Oak. Carmel's lightweight gang evened out their season record at 5-5 by whipping the Spartan Babes and can take over third place in the league race by clipping San Lorenzo tomorrow night.

Carmel's junior-varsity unit was too big for the valley boys and murdered them on the boards. With Hal Gregerson and the Wilkin twins snaring nearly all the rebounds, it was an easy job for the local preps to get the second and third shots which win the close games.

All fifteen of the Padre lightweights had a hand in bringing home the win over the Spartan Babes with the big factor being a hustling team defense. Unable to hit consistently from the floor, the Carmel lights were mighty sticky on defense and kept in the ball game by forcing bad passes and taking advantage of the Spartan fouls. Walter Helm, John Doud, and Russ Wise were the top scorers for the Carmel Babes as the rebound honors went to Doud, Wise, and Pete Willcox. The Padre lights were behind for most of the game but came with a rush in the final period to post the coveted victory.

The Padre varsity put on a terrific team effort to overcome a 28-18 halftime deficit and finish in front, 52 to 49. The Spartans dominated play in the first half as pivotman Cooper used his 6-5 height advantage to control the backboards and was hooking the ball with devastating accuracy. However, in the second half, the Padres blocked out the talented Cooper by utilizing a sagging defense which cut down his inside effectiveness. Cold in the first half, the Padres caught fire in the third quarter and held a hot shooting streak for the entire second half. With Art Wilkerson, slender senior center, leading the way, the Red and Gray squad caught the hosts midway in the fourth quarter and it was a touch-and-go affair the rest of the way. Wilkerson pumped in 12 points to lead the Padre scorers and played his best floor game of the current season. The hustling offensive play of Bill Hicks, Phil Durbrow, and Frank Wallace put constant pressure on the Gonzales defense while Carmel's top defensive players were Dennis Peavey and Andy Gray. The two defensive stalwarts stole several Spartan passes and set up scoring opportunities for the front line.

Most people take water for granted—until they are deprived of it. As long as there is an abundant supply and it is easily available, its true value is not fully appreciated. Water has to be brought from many miles away, it has to be tested constantly for its purity, and it arrives in your home "special delivery" at the lowest possible cost. Millions of dollars have been spent in order to provide you with one of the finest water supplies in the land.

Perhaps if we thought occasionally of what it would be like to be without water, we would be more appreciative that we have all we want, when we want it, and for such a nominal price.

where the need is great, no work is being done.

She was particularly impressed by the success of the project in Italy where there are 48 work centers. In Italy it is called the National Union for the Struggle Against Illiteracy and is backed by the Italian government. However, funds come from the Quakers and other American donors. These work centers teach people various trades and crafts such as carpentry and mechanics, and the women are taught embroidery and sewing. Certain traditional crafts, such as the making of custom-made carpets, are being revived. They also do road-building and construct needed buildings.

"It is not that someone comes and does these things for them", Miss Kurland reports. "The way it works is that each person makes a contribution. For example, ten days' work and one beam for building; or two days work and twenty bricks."

"This particular organization", she went on, "is non-political and non-church. It is a really inspiring thing, for it is a testament of democracy that works."

In Spain, however, she says, "The situation would break your heart". There one still sees men ploughing with oxen and a yoke and nothing is being done to better their lot.

Although Ethel Kurland had been told before going to Spain that the subject of politics was "verboden", she found this was completely untrue. People spoke of politics and the Civil War quite freely, quite as freely as people speak here of such matters. She found there was much dissatisfaction with the government but that everyone concurred in feeling that any government was better than war. The devastation of the Civil War of the '30s is felt not only in terms of poverty but culturally. For example, nothing is going on in the arts in Spain; and prior to the war Spain was rich in the fields of poetry, drama, painting and the art of the novel, to name but a few.

But the thing that impressed her the most was the spirit of the people itself. "Spain really does have a kind of noble dignity and graciousness that I have never known in any other people", she said. "I fail to see how one could not respond to Spain. I talk about the hopelessness of the young people — and yet Spain is inspiring rather than depressing. Incidentally, Spain is not gay; it is very sombre, despite the castanets. The thing that is not depressing is the spirit of these people; the fact that they are so poor and the fact that they are not concerned with material things, with money, as a result of it. This is quite incredible and one is quite overcome by this."

She went on to say that the Spanish people are scrupulously honest. "I hate to say, like the typical tourist, that I was cheated by taxi drivers all over Europe — but this really happens, except in Spain. In Spain they hand back every extra peseta in change."

Chambermaids would refuse tips in hotels and say, "I did what I did because I liked to do it for you". In a country where the poverty is so great that a few extra pesetas would make a tremendous difference Ethel Kurland found this single fact overwhelming.

"In Spain", she says, "a man's worth is in himself. The Spanish speak of others as a 'noble man'. There is an old saying that, 'We are as noble as the king, only just not as rich'. In other words, there is a sense of spiritual values in Spain."

"They have an opportunity to cheat tourists, for example", she pointed out, "but they don't cheat them. They make a choice on the side of behaving with the kind of dignity that they have."

In addition to travelling all over Spain, as well as in Italy, France and England, Miss Kurland spent a considerable period of time on a tiny island called Ibiza, one of the Balearics about 120 miles off the coast of Spain. The town in which she stayed was called Santa Eulalia del Rio and here she had an opportunity to view Spanish village life at close quarters. (It was this island Eliot Paul wrote about in his Life and Death of a Spanish Town). Here, as on the mainland, the poverty was incredible; but the spirit, as usual, inspiring.

"As an example of the sort of thing that happens", Miss Kurland related, "There was an elderly Englishwoman who was crippled and walked with two canes. She was eager for a radio in order to hear the news broadcasts, but decided she would have to wait a few months before she could afford to get it. One day the local chauffeur who did all our errands said he had a package for her. He delivered it sheepishly. He had bought the radio for her. You can imagine what, to him, it cost. Why, it represented a fortune!"

The chauffeur was sorry for the Englishwoman because she couldn't walk and couldn't swim like the rest of the British and American colony.

"The Englishwoman burst into tears", Miss Kurland went on. "She said, 'Suppose I had decided to leave and not have paid this man for it!'" (The Englishwoman has now decided to emigrate permanently to Ibiza).

On another occasion the Englishwoman went into a shop to buy fruit but she had only a few pesetas with her, and remarked, "This is all I have". The woman who ran the stand said, "Oh no, I won't take your money. Pay another time". The Englishwoman had not meant that was all the money she had in the world; only that it was all she had with her at the moment; still the woman would not take her money.

"This sort of thing is incredible. One does not expect to find it. We all talked about it there", she added, meaning the foreign colony. "Everyone found it incredible."

When Ethel Kurland left Santa Eulalia the villagers flocked to the pier to see her off and she noticed that one young man was weeping bitterly. "I thought something had happened. Perhaps someone had died. I asked what was the matter. Why, she's sorry to see you go", I was told. This simply had not occurred to me."

Miss Kurland took a great many photographs while abroad but particularly of Santa Eulalia on which she plans to do an article. "The town is very beautiful," she relates, "a dazzlingly white little town against the blue enamel of the Mediterranean."

"I am afraid hundreds of Americans will start flocking there", she added.

Ethel Kurland, who ran an art gallery called the Ethel Kurland Gallery when she first came to the Peninsula five years ago, originally hailed from New York where she was a reporter as well as a photographer and handled all the ship news for the various newspapers. She said that on her recent trip she received a great deal of assistance from the Associated Press who gave her much information on political as well as local matters.

Occidental Glee Club Gave High Quality Concert Sunday

Precision, quality of tone and harmony were the factors achieved by Howard Swan, conductor of the Occidental College Glee Club concert Sunday evening in Sunset Auditorium.

Numbers on the program included a part of Schubert's Mass in G, Debussy's Salute to Spring, selections from My Fair Lady, and Negro spirituals.

Appreciation expressed by the audience was typical of Carmel—a public that loves the best in music. —N. McL.

Mrs. Mary Joyce Dunbaugh was found guilty of driving under the influence of alcohol in Monterey Municipal Court on Tuesday. She was involved in an accident on Dec. 14 near the Golden Bough Theatre. At the request of her attorneys, Gordon Campbell and Fred Farr, the case was referred to the probation officer for investigation.

near the beach on December 16. Presuming that he might have drowned, police and the sheriff's office have been on the alert for the possible appearance of his body. Cunningham was a teacher at Monterey High School and lived in Carmel Woods at the time of his disappearance.

Music On The Peninsula

By MARY LINDSAY-OLIVER

Monterey County Symphony Orchestra's third concert of this season in Carmel and Salinas with Karl Schnabel, piano soloist, were triumphs in more ways than one. In Carmel a full house responded enthusiastically to the earnest efforts of the entire personnel who met the challenge of a great pianist and gave to the Beethoven Concerto and Chopin Polonaise some of the best accompanying they have done. It was also a triumph in a greater and more responsive audience who now realize we have an orchestra above those of other communities attested to by out-of-town visitors. Many who missed hearing Schnabel's recital here last year were carried away with the quality of his performance Monday night, for, without doubt, he is of the very first piano virtuosi of today. It was a lucky opportunity that brought him to thrill everyone with his subtle and extremely flexible execution and dynamic utterance of the earlier No. 1 Beethoven Concerto. This composition reflects the composer's first influence of Haydn and Mozart but in it the mightier Beethoven emerges into broader and more precipitous cascades of passionate sound and climaxes. Nothing could have been more beautiful or compelling than the pianist's expression of depth of poetic feeling and singing qualities in the Largo.

Echoed in the orchestral parts was also a proof of the players' growth of perception in ensemble under Gregory Millar's guidance. Then one triumph succeeded another in Chopin's Polonaise Brillante with its sympathetic prelude for piano alone followed by the brilliancy, strength, and scintillating flashes of the polonaise proper with its musical charm and stately import. Schnabel drew dynamics from the piano that Chopin himself could hardly have achieved in the instruments of his day. If only the audience would refrain from applause between movements, continuity would not be broken, but their perfectly just enthusiasm broke loose, and at the end of each performance called and recalled both soloist and conductor who shared it with the orchestra players.

Frescobaldi's Toccata, orchestrated by Hans Kindler whom I heard conduct it several times with the National, made an excellent opening to the program. It was dedicated to the memory of B. Franklin Dixon, former president of the Symphony Association. Strauss' Till Eulenspiegel's Merry Pranks is a difficult work but both here and in Salinas Millar and the Orchestra compassed the famous tone-poem with great credit, dramatic expression and verve. Its contrapuntal writing of the topsy-turvy mischief of Till came through in good co-ordination and effect with outstanding parts by Leader Francesco Mazzi, horn player Joseph Axup and oboeist Raymond Dute. This and Copland's Three Dances from his Rodeo, also a difficult score interestingly performed, made up the moderns, all of which was received with gusto. Millar's conducting was full of strength and artistic expression, and done without scores in the second half of the program. Added to his great abilities is a genius for program-making with never a let down for less experienced players. Thus has he exacted and brought the Monterey County Orchestra to its present accomplishment which just easy compositions and a less exacting director could never have done. We are grateful for Gregory Millar.

Last Wednesday at the All Saints' Parish Hall Nancy Ness Bowman presented four of the singers she is coaching who were heard by a good audience, though, unfortunately I missed the first two groups. These were solos by Robert Estby, baritone, and Larry Glandon, tenor, from Paisiello, Scarlatti, Purcell, Dix, Monteverde, Schubert, Mascagni and Verdi. Gifted with good voices they later sang in duet La Forza del Destino, Verdi, and O Mimi, from Puccini's Boheme and added an encore. Joann Bowling, soprano, gave Hageman's Do not go, my love, Bohm's Still wie die Nacht, Schubert's Die Post and Mascagni's Aria from Cavalleria Rusticana, and added Metcalf's Absent in which her modulation was particularly pleasing. Ted Cross, well known in the community, pleased with Sylvia, Speaks, Invictus, Huhn and two selections from Mozart's Marriage of Figaro and Verdi's Othello. His interest in opera has shown in all he has done and he was enthusiastically received. Accompanying at the piano with fine musicianship was Kenneth Williams, conductor of The Fort Ord Soldiers Chorus, who contributed much help to the singers. At a delightful party in the Bowman home following the concert, a farewell fanfare was given Williams because he is immediately leaving the Army and expects to go further with his music. This community will retain interest in his progress, as in all other talented musicians from the locality.

WHAT'S DOING

D. D. Muir, your Telephone Manager in Carmel

See that box on the telephone pole? It helps seven phone calls travel at the same time along this one pair of wires. That means one pair of wires is doing the job of seven! You'll get an idea of how it works if you think of a freeway, with cars running side by side in separate lanes. To carry your calls, a carrier system sets up separate voice lanes, or frequencies. With these extra voice lanes, phone lines can work a lot harder for you. Especially in rural areas, carrier systems are helping us bring more service to more people.

When a fuse blows out at your house do you sometimes have a tough time seeing which one to replace? In a phone office, the grasshopper fuse (left) helps solve that problem. (And it does kind of look like a grasshopper, don't you think?) When this fuse blows out, a colored bead springs out on a metal arm. So our people can spot it in a jiffy. Little things like this speed up repairs, save time when minutes count.

Pictured here are Donna Wilson and Gloria Yohe, two Service Representatives in our Business Office to help you with your problems. Donna was raised right here on the Peninsula, graduating from Pacific Grove High School and going on to Monterey Peninsula College. Gloria, a graduate from the University of Redlands, is originally from Tucson, Arizona. Being interested with Theatre Arts, Gloria is presently playing the part of Fiona in the Wharf Players production of Brigadoon which will have its opening in the later part of February.

If you have any problems concerning your telephone, Gloria and Donna would certainly be glad to help you. Please don't hesitate to call.

FROM A LIBRARIAN'S NOTEBOOK

By Ruth Galvin Thornburg

Many of the essays in Dorothy Thompson's new book first appeared in her column in the Ladies Home Journal. The title of the book is The Courage To Be Happy and it is filled with sturdy thoughts on many subjects and is a delight to read. She says, "And a biographer may one day celebrate that unique but little noted institution of American life—the big and little public libraries that hand out their magic of thought and rhyme to every snub nosed urchin with some spark of divine hunger, from Maine to California". Nice?

In sad contrast we have Caitlin Thomas' Leftover Life to Kill. This is her well written account of the first few months of her life after the death of Dylan Thomas. With frankness she recounts her days and months, sometimes sober, most of the time not so, and her affair with a young man eighteen years her junior. A struggle for forgetfulness after the shock of her husband's passing, is what she shows us.

What We Want of Our Schools is by Irving Adler. The vigorous discussions in this book answer questions on the teaching-reading controversy, on school budgets, on IQs, and on the old three Rs in education.

A charming book altogether is Mary McCarthy's Meet Kitty. Kitty was Mary McCarthy's mother who came as a child to San Francisco, in 1867, and who loved the city all her life. Kitty raised her thirteen children without any help from her husband, and with no recriminations, and she kept her sense of humor and her great spirit all her life. She was a success in the highest meaning of the word. You should meet Kitty.

Charles Laughton collected sixty of his favorite stories from many sources ranging all the way from the Bible and the Arabian Nights to the latest modern author. These are mostly pieces which he has used in his well known programs of reading aloud to audiences all over the country, including Carmel. The title of the collection is Read Me a Story.

Drugs and the Mind is the fascinating book on new and ancient drugs and their effects upon the human mind, and their potentialities for good and evil. It was written by Robert de Ropp.

We have The White Witch by Elizabeth Goudge in which she goes back to historical fiction as she did in her well known Green Dolphin Street. The White Witch is laid in England during the reign of Charles I. The great popularity of Elizabeth Goudge will insure a waiting list on this book, so don't delay too long in signing up for it.

There are four new mystery stories including one by Mignon Eberhart entitled Another Man's Murder.

We've had a rash of book stealing again. We wish all parents instilled in their children a respect for public property, a respect which would stay with them all of their lives.

Dial M For Murder Opens Tomorrow At The Circle Theatre

Tomorrow evening Dial M for Murder will be presented on the Circle Theatre stage, a Golden Bough Players production directed by Charlotte Perry. It is not strictly a whodunit mystery, in the sense that the audience is let into the secret while the cast (except the villain) remain in the dark until the climax, a scene of almost unbearable suspense.

Dial M was the first play of its young English author, Frederic Knott. It was turned down by every London manager, but when the British Broadcasting Corporation finally ran it on T. V. it was such a success that the men who had rejected it fought for producing rights, and Broadway followed suit.

The cast for the Circle production: Lloyd Jenkins, Paul Coleman, Rosamond Beck-Meyer, Gene Eplett, Errol Allan, Cecil Haskell, and Kit Jones. Technical Director and Stage Manager is Ruth Allen. Assistant to Technical Director, Kit Jones; Production Assistant Polly Bowhay; Props, John Gross;

Thorsisle-Norwegian Party

Mrs. Bill O'Malley entertained at tea yesterday afternoon for Mrs. Oscar Fossell of San Francisco who is her guest for several days before leaving for a five months' visit to her native Norway. Mrs. Fossell also travels to the South Pacific with her husband, chief engineer of the Norwegian freighter Thorsisle, as the ship's unofficial hostess. Guests invited to meet Mrs. Fossell were either Norwegians living here or Carmelites who had travelled to the South Seas on the Thorsisle. Sharing memories yesterday afternoon were Mrs. Gloria Dalton, Mrs. Octavius Sisson, Dr. Frances Shields, Mrs. Howard Clark, Mrs. Arthur Strasburger Jr., Mrs. Charles Taylor, Mrs. Helen Todd, Mrs. Donald Craig, Mrs. Donald Teague, Miss Birgit Carlson, and the hostess and guest of honor.

Mitchells' Snowbaby Grandchild

Skiing enthusiast Stuart Mitchell, superintendent of Carmel Schools, never expected his first grandchild to be born on a ski trip but that is what happened last Sunday when Laura Jane Small selected Yosemite Valley for her birthplace.

Laura was not expected until the end of March so her parents, Barbara and Richard Small of Stockton, decided to accompany Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell and their daughter, Sue, to Yosemite last weekend. They met in Merced and spent Saturday enjoying the snow country. At 3:00 o'clock Sunday morning Laura Jane's prospective arrival became the exciting feature of the Mitchell's ski trip. Her mother, Barbara, was taken to Yosemite Valley Memorial Hospital and the vigil began. Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell had to return to Carmel during the afternoon, before Laura Jane was born, but a telephone call, later, told them that their first grandchild, weighing six pounds, was born Sunday evening between 6:00 and 7:00 o'clock and that both she and her mother were in fine condition.

"They're the only patients in the hospital without fractures," says Mrs. Mitchell.

This weekend Mrs. Mitchell is returning to Yosemite to take her daughter and grandchild back to Stockton and stay with them for a week or so. Barbara completed her junior year as a music major at College of the Pacific last month and plans to continue taking six units of her senior year this semester. Her husband, Dick, is a senior music major at COP. Laura Jane's other grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Robert Small of Concord.

Talk On Japan For Auxillary

The Reverend George Inadomi spoke at the luncheon of the Woman's Auxillary of The Church of the Wayfarer at their February meeting. Mr. Inadomi is the minister of the El Estero (Japanese) Presbyterian Church in Monterey. He visited Japan two years ago and told about some of the impressions he received of the people and showed slides.

Mrs. John R. Christie presided at the business meeting which followed. The Auxillary provided a new movie projector and speaker for use in the Church through the generosity of Mrs. J. H. Maxey. The El Estero Church was voted a sum of money to assist the work of the Pastor. Mrs. James G. Greenwood gave the devotions and Mrs. Kenneth Kightly introduced the speaker. The luncheon was served by Circle number four, Mrs. Leonard Fletcher, chairman.

Writers Club Meeting

A special meeting of the board of directors and all members of the local branch of the California Writers Club has been called for February 21, at 2:30 o'clock in the afternoon at La Playa Hotel. Nelo Drizari, president, urges every member to attend.

Beverly Wood To Wed April 12

Beverly Anne Wood, daughter of Mrs. Janice B. Wood of Carmel and Vernon D. Wood of Hollywood, will become the bride of James D. Freeman in the Church of the Wayfarer on April 12. Wedding plans were made at a recent dinner party given by Mrs. Wood in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Freeman of Turlock, parents of Beverly's fiancé. Assemblyman Pattee To Seek Re-Election

Assemblyman Alan G. Pattee announced today from his Corral de Tierra ranch home that he will seek re-election to the 34th District Assembly Seat that he has held for the last two terms.

Assemblyman Pattee, whose district covers Monterey County, was first elected in 1954 and was re-elected by both parties in the Primaries in 1956.

In seeking re-election, Assemblyman Pattee said, "I can only run on my record as a State Assemblyman. I have appreciated the excellent support that I have received in the past from the people of Monterey County, and I hope that my record is such that I will again receive this support. I will continue to be a full-time representative of Monterey County if re-elected, and I will continue to carry, to the best of my ability, the responsibility for representing all the people of my County in Sacramento. I also appreciate the cooperation I have received from my colleagues, and especially from my own State Senator, in the Legislature, who have all worked so closely with me for the welfare of the State."

At present Assemblyman Pattee is Chairman of the Subcommittee on General Insurance and vice-chairman of the Standing Committee on Livestock and Dairies. He is also a member on the important Revenue and Tax Committee, Agriculture and Fish and Game, besides being a member of the Joint Committee on Livestock and Agriculture Problems.

PINE CONE BLDG (Dolores Street between 7th & 8th) CARMEL

The Way To See The Pacific Is On A Freighter, Mrs. Clark Finds

"Carmel is beautiful and so is the California coast," says Mrs. Howard E. Clark home from an 81 day trip to the South Pacific. She is comparing her home town and state with white-beached coral atolls crowned with palms, black beached volcanic islands with high mysterious mountains and lush vegetation, and the northern Australia coastal region, "and almost nowhere to swim," she adds.

However, Mrs. Clark admits that she and Dr. Clark and Dr. Frances Shields had a remarkable and unforgettable trip with so much to talk about "that it's hard to know where to begin." Three months ago these Carmelites left on the Norwegian freighter Thor-sisle from San Francisco with leisurely days ahead for swimming in the ship's pool "away from coral, sharks, alligators, crocodiles and lethal jellyfish," balmy evenings on what the passengers called "the moon deck," and days of exploring fascinating South Sea islands and meeting the friendly, gentle, generous people who "loved Americans." Dr. Clark left the ship in Fiji and flew back to Carmel after seeing Kora Levu, a Fijian resort of native huts set in tropical scenery with crickets singing in the thatch, but with everything completely comfortable for Americans. Mrs. Clark and Dr. Shields continued to Australia with the ship.

"I had no comprehension of the last war in the South Pacific," says Mrs. Clark, "in spite of written reports and movies, until this voyage." She relates that an Australian government employee told her that in the process of lumbering the Owen Stanley mountains, in New Guinea, saws are constantly broken when blades hit hidden shrapnel embedded in trees, even though the lush growth has covered almost every evidence of our troops' occupation. In the New Hebrides she saw Million Dollar Point where American equipment was dumped in the ocean when France refused to buy the war surplus. She was impressed by the roads Americans had built in the South Pacific, now lost, for the most part, in the undergrowth, and the fond regard Americans left behind them in the minds of South Pacific peoples.

The isolation of the islands astonished Mrs. Clark. The only sizable ship she saw was the "mother ship" of a Japanese tuna fleet. Mail was delivered by British submarine to one island when the inter-island plane was damaged. There were no spare parts available on the island, so, during the long wait for replacements to arrive, mail was brought by the first passing vessel.

Of the Mother Hubbard Mrs. Clark says "the people would be much healthier in that uncomfortable warm climate without the high-necked, long-sleeved garment."

As a former member of the Carmel school board she was interested to see that governments and missionaries on many of the islands were doing a good job in the education field. Of government Mrs. Clark observed that, although the South Pacific peoples were so isolated they had no interest in world affairs, they were "eager to run their own affairs". She and Dr. Clark noticed that hospitals and medical services were flourishing with American help.

In Samoa Mrs. Clark visited Robert Louis Stevenson's grave. She reports that in Samoa half the population is under the age of 20, that the chief administers his tribe paternalistically with members sharing everything equally, even to the extent of workers in the Van Camp tuna company having their wages divided communally.

"The way to see the South Pacific is on a freighter," maintains Mrs. Clark, "12 passengers landing don't upset island life, and the cargo delivered and loaded provides another insight into South Sea life."

A strike kept the ship in San Pedro for five days on the return journey. The last part of the voyage, from San Pedro to San Francisco, was when Mrs. Clark decided that our coast compared favorably with all she had seen in the South Pacific. Back home in Carmel she completed her comparison, but, she adds, "I had never realized before that Carmel was cold. I admit the South Pacific was much warmer."

CHURCHESCHRISTIAN SCIENCE SERMON

The spiritual relationship of God and man will be a topic dealt with at Christian Science services this Sunday.

Keynoting the Lesson-Sermon entitled "Soul" is the Golden Text from Isaiah (25:9): "Lo, this is our God; we have waited for him, and he will save us: this is the Lord; we have waited for him, we will be glad and rejoice in his salvation."

Selections from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy will include the following (120:4): "Soul, or Spirit, is God, unchangeable and eternal; and man coexists with and reflects Soul, God, for man is God's image."

Scriptural readings will include the following from Psalms (43:5): "Why art thou cast down, O my soul? and why art thou disquieted within me? hope in God: for I shall yet praise him, who is the health of my countenance, and my God."

A Sombrero For Karl Schnabel

Unique appreciation of Karl Ulrich Schnabel's piano playing with the Monterey County Symphony was expressed on Tuesday night in Salinas by a Latin-American member of the audience. After Mr. Schnabel finished the Beethoven concerto No. 1, the gentleman leapt to his feet with loud bravos and exhorted the audience to further and further applause, then, when the Polonaise Brillante ended, this enthusiastic listener, again bravoing, rushed to the stage, and, with a flourish, presented Mr. Schnabel with his cowboy hat.

Following Monday evening's performance of the same concert in Sunset Auditorium, Mr. Schnabel expressed his appreciation of the Symphony's playing, under the direction of Gregory Millar, to Symphony Association president Eben Whittlesey, "I have never had a better orchestral accompaniment to the Polonaise," said the world famous pianist.

Betty MacDonald

Betty MacDonald of Carmel Valley, author of The Egg and I, Onions in the Stew, and other books, died in Seattle of cancer on Friday night after a long illness. With her at the time of her death was her husband, Donald MacDonald, who, with his wife, owned and operated a ranch on the Los Laureles grade. Mrs. MacDonald was 49 years old.

Robert W. Moon will be the speaker at the second annual combined Ash Wednesday service of All Saints' Episcopal Church, the Church of the Wayfarer and Carmel Presbyterian Church on February 19. The united service, in observance of the Lenten season, will be held at 8:00 o'clock in the evening in the Presbyterian Church and conducted by the pastor, Dr. Joseph M. Ewing. Mr. Fred Lewis will be at the organ and the choir will make their first formal appearance in the choir loft.

Carmel Point . . . and our very best listing

This magnificent home was formerly listed at $67,500 and worth every penny of it. The owner now MUST sell and has reduced her price to $62,500. This is what she offers. 4 bedrooms, 4 baths, plus servants' room and bath. Very large living room and dining room. A double garage, plus single garage for servants' car. Over 10,000 square feet of land on a corner—enough to give elbow room, enough for a nice large garden, but not so much that the work and expense become prohibitive. View . . . there's a magnificent ocean view from most of the rooms. You look straight across the Bay to Pebble Beach—it's a no-glare view. Beautiful, wool wall-to-wall carpeting is included in the selling price, too. This listing is almost too good to be true. If you're in the market for a fine, large home, call us right now. We repeat the low price: $62,500. Exclusive.

Gunnar Norberg Is Council Candidate

(they'd never met at Stanford) and had been in the cast of the Henry Duffy Players on the coast, was in New York to further a career on the stage. They married, came to Carmel for a vacation, and decided to stay.

While in the army, 1940-45, Gunnar edited the Army newspaper at Camp Beale, started a symphony orchestra (he was in special services) and a football team, which beat the College of Pacific in "rain, mud, and sleet one December day at Stockton," he recalls with relish.

He was released from the army to help one of the Government Agencies at the U. N. Conference in San Francisco as radio-news writer.

Back in Carmel he re-activated his Travel Agency business which he still operates. Mrs. Norberg has the Yarn Shop on Seventh Street. Their two children, Karin, 13, who is in the eighth grade at Sunset, and Eric, 15, a sophomore in high school were both born in Carmel.

Gunnar has lost more elections by a whisker than any other Carmelite in public life. He lost a try for the Carmel Sanitary District Board to incumbent Allen Knight by one vote. Mrs. Julian von Meier beat him in a school board election by 19 votes. Nine committee members from the peninsula were elected to the Monterey County Republican Central Committee out of a field of twenty. Gunnar came in tenth. He carried Carmel but lost in the other Peninsula cities where his name was less familiar to the voters.

Withal, he has spent more time serving on committees and campaigning for issues he felt important to the community than in running for election. Untold hours went into his study of the recent proposed Junior College district and speech-making campaign against it. He was the minority member of the advisory citizens' committee on the question, and is secretary and charter member of the Carmel Taxpayers Association which sponsored the straw-vote election to convince the school board that Carmel taxpayers did not want to participate in the district. At present he is a tireless supporter of the Carmel Planning Commission and the Carmel Valley Property Owners Association in their fight before the county planning commission to hold the proposed Carmel Knolls subdivision to acre lot minimum.

In 1949 he was chairman of the Carmel Business Association committee to stop further commercial zoning at the mouth of Carmel Valley; he served several terms on the school reorganization committee, and for three years has been secretary treasurer of Carmel Rotary.

Four Candidates In Last Minute Council Filing

Rose Brown, Louis Nicoud, Howard Baxter, Richard Wright, Evelyn Scardigli and Michael Franke.

Jim Campbell came from New York to make his home in Carmel in 1945. He is office manager for Leppert-Low Iron Works in Monterey and previously held the same position with M. J. Murphy in Carmel. His wife, Marjorie, is a nurse in a local hospital and their daughter, Susan, 11, is a student at Sunset School.

Jim is a Great Books section leader, has participated in Forest Theater productions, served as Chairman of the County Democratic Central Committee and at the present is Representative of the 25th Senatorial District, California Democratic Council.

See pictures and biographies of Mrs. Nielsen and Mr. Norberg on page one, this issue. Mr. Benson and Mr. Campbell made their candidacy known too late for pictures in this issue.

Point Lobos League,
Carmel, Calif.
February 1, 1958.

Park Supervisor, Milton Frincke,
Point Lobos Reserve,
Carmel, California.

Dear Mr. Frincke,

As Secretary to the Point Lobos League, I have been asked to register the reaction of this group to the necessary parking lot at the Carmel River Mouth Beach.

People are disturbed that the automobile once again apparently must mar the scenic values of our coastline. It seems as if the automobile must always be treated with the practical solution neglecting the aesthetic solution.

Can't we solve problems such as this one with more tender handling and greater sensitivity to the environment? On Point Lobos Reserve the parking has been accomplished with a minimum of scarring. Can't we apply the Point Lobos solution to future parking areas that will by necessity spring up along our scenic spots? What I personally would like to suggest is the use of a little more poetry in planning our parking lots.

In the meantime, drifting sands may minimize the present eyesore.

Very truly,

Margaret Owings.

Protective Association To Ask New Zoning

Our stores in areas adjacent to the residential area has been upheld by the Alcoholic Beverage Control Appeals Board and in the Superior Court of the County of Monterey. Now that the principle has been established, the Carmel Protective Association has decided that their efforts should be coordinated with those of the City of Carmel to provide adequate zoning in carrying out the desired effect. Consequently the Association has decided not to continue to use further legal action in protesting the application of Paul E. Chedester and Robert Aebersold for a liquor license for the Surf

Mrs. Nielsen also met her future husband, Carmel grocer Walter Nielsen, on the spring visit. When she returned to Carmel she was office nurse for Dr. R. A. Kocher and in December 1935, married Mr. Nielsen.

Mrs. Nielsen's four children were all born here. Connie, the oldest was the first to receive her education in Carmel schools. After two years at Stephens College in Missouri, she returned here last June and became Dr. Edward P. Marcucci's dental assistant in his Carmel Valley office. She is now taking further dental assistant courses in San Francisco before returning to work with Dr. Marcucci. Nancy, Mrs. Nielsen's second daughter, graduated from Carmel High in June and is now completing courses in Powers Modelling School in San Francisco. Her son, Greg, is a sophomore at Carmel High and her youngest daughter, Penny, is a freshman.

Mrs. Nielsen's community activities include the vice presidency of the Carmel P.T.A. and three years on the executive board of this organization. She is the immediate past chairman of the Carmel chapter of the American Red Cross. She also served as Red Cross vice chairman and is now chairman of this group's home service department.

A member of All Saints' Episcopal Church, Mrs. Nielsen is second vice president of All Saints' Women's Auxiliary, has served on the executive board and been in charge of the auxiliary's annual bazaar for two years. Last year Mrs. Nielsen was secretary for Monterey Peninsula Volunteer Services.

COUNTY ZONING

AN OPEN LETTER
ADDRESSED TO PERSONS INTERESTED IN GOOD REPRESENTATION ON OUR COUNTY PLANNING COMMISSION

Many of us who live in rural areas of the county are beginning to wonder why so many members of the county planning commission, which deals with rural planning problems, are strictly urban in residence location and personal viewpoint—to say nothing of business connections, and activities, which in their very nature, run counter to basic planning viewpoints of rural residents.

Each municipality on the Peninsula has its own planning commission which possesses full authority to make its own planning decisions for its own people; and, quite properly, these commissions are made up of local urban residents.

Is it not equally logical and proper for the county commission, which deals with rural planning problems, to be composed of genuine rural residents who are understanding and sympathetic toward the rural viewpoint?

It is not strange that the present anomaly of an urban minded commission passing upon rural problems, should result in decisions which nullify the will and wish of a rural community regarding problems which concern only that community and on which there is virtually unanimous agreement in the community.

To correct this undemocratic situation we hope that the county commissioners will miss no opportunity to appoint truly representative rural people who are acceptable to rural citizens, as vacancies occur in the county planning commission.
